

Distance & Distributed Library Services Murray Library, University of Saskatchewan

Helpful Links

GENERAL INFORMATION

Distance & Distributed Library Services (DDLS) – Murray Library

<http://library.usask.ca/murray/offcampus/index.php>

Online request forms, service information & FAQs, links to research and writing help, information for instructors and more

Centre for Continuing & Distance Education (CCDE) Bulletin

http://ccde.usask.ca/sites/ccde.usask.ca/files/CCDE/DOC/PDF/DOC_Bulletin.pdf

Distance & Distributed Library Services and other library information

INSTRUCTIONAL

How Do I? – University of Saskatchewan Library

<http://libguides.usask.ca/HowDoI>

Accessible from the library home page, includes links on getting started, finding books, journal articles and other resources, evaluating information, writing, citing, video guides and more

WRITING

Student Learning Services (SLS)

<http://library.usask.ca/studentlearning/>

Workshops, writing and math help, tutorials and videos on writing, math readiness, study skills, and more

Centre for Continuing & Distance Education (CCDE) Writing Centre for students enrolled in Distance and Off-Campus Classes

<http://www.ccde.usask.ca/writing/>

“Anyone taking a distance class administered by the CCDE can use this free service. This includes online, independent studies, televised, multi-mode and off-campus classes.

- Provides tools and support to help you write effective essays, reports, or reviews.
- Simply submit a project draft and a qualified tutor will assess your work and offer advice to improve your project.
- Contact the tutor if you have difficulty getting started, or want advice on constructing an outline.
- Note: tutors do not replace writing instruction in your classes – they enhance and support it. Tutors will not write, edit, or proofread assignments and will not ghostwrite essays or offer instruction in English as a second language.
- We do not guarantee “A’s”. You do the work and we support you in the process.”